PRINCIPLES OF VALUE AND PRICE AS RELATED TO FARM PRODUCTS QUESTIONS 1. Distinguish between price, exchange-value, and utility. 2. Which one of these coincides with the actual value or fair price to which people so frequently refer 3. Is value a quality which is absolute or relative Does it reside inside an article or is it extrinsic to it 4. So long as an article remains unchanged, is its value unchanged In your answer do you consider that an article is unchanged only so long as its form or appearance is the same Would its value be affected by a mere change in location a change in time 5. Does the market value of barley and rye in the United States depend upon the character of these grains or upon the nationality of our people or upon both 6. Do you think that the market prices of any of our agricultural products would be revised if all private incomes above 5, 000 were suddenly swept away if every family were assured an income of at least 3, 000 What is the meaning of effectual demand 7. We often say that prices are low because the supply exceeds the demand. Is this expression accurate and complete If supply is in excess of all demand, what will be the price of the article 8. Show how you own demand for fresh fruit is affected by the principle of diminishing utility. What is marginal utility 9....
